Weekly Prayer at Concerned Christians:

We encourage all of our Metro-Phoenix area friends to join us in prayer for our LDS neighbors every Monday, 7:00-8:00 pm at our Mesa office, 525 East Broadway Road (two blocks east of Mesa Drive, southwest corner of Broadway Road and Pioneer). Hosted by Duane Strohmeier of Concerned Christians.

When Casey wrote to me about her concern for Conner, an LDS male her same age, I had an uneasy sense that she may be playing with fire. The following are excerpts of my communication with her (identities have been changed to protect privacy).

*****

Dear Judy,

I volunteer at an inner city rescue mission and work with a guy named Conner. He's an awesome guy and we get along really good. Conner is Mormon and we sometimes have conversations about what we believe or about what the Bible says. He doesn't know much about his own religion because for the last two years, he hasn't done much to be a good Mormon.

About three weeks ago he told me he was trying to be a good person so that he would be worthy enough to go on a mission. I asked him "Is it working Conner, to be a better person and so deserve a good place in the church?"

He looked at me and said, "Is your life always focused on God, Casey?"

"I wish," I said. "We can never do enough good works to deserve our salvation, but Christ died so that our sins can be forgiven."

That night, we had a really deep conversation. How unhappy he is, trying to find peace with God through his own works... how happy he could be if he got to know the Lord Jesus. He came to some of the youth activities at my church and we've been talking about what God says in His word, how our life should be, how we can be saved, etc. Sometimes it's hard because I realize that I can't change a person's heart, but there is still hope. I pray that God will change Conner and show him that He is a loving God who forgives!

In the meantime I talk a lot with my parents. They support my working at the mission, bringing clients to church and stuff. But now their 18 year old daughter is suddenly hanging out with a 21 year old guy who's... Mormon. Last night, Conner had a BBQ and he got to take a friend, so he asked me to come along. My parents worry. Not that they have anything against him, but his religion is a false religion, right? I think that's kind of scary for parents. And I understand!

We have great times together, respect each other and he is very interested in what I believe. It's not that I'm totally in love, but I do really like him. He just asked me to go to his church dance on Friday night. I want to go to meet his friends, but I don't think I should get involved in activities from his church. Is that right, or not? What do you think?

Also, last night he asked me if I wanted to go for a walk one of these days... I've known him for a long time and he's pretty traditional and treats me with respect but I really struggle with the whole situation. I mean, if we like each other this much, maybe it's kind of dangerous. I realize I could never, and I would never marry someone who's Mormon. We pray, "Lead me not into temptation" but shouldn't we avoid the temptation then? My question is: How far can you go in being friends with someone who's Mormon?

Dear Casey,

I can tell by your letter that you are devoted to our Lord and you serve Him in the mission. I'm sure you've planted many seeds.

Now a word of caution. We do a lot of counseling in our ministry. One of the saddest things we see on a regular basis is a sweet Christian girl or boy who innocently gets involved with a clean-cut wholesome Mormon of the opposite sex and ends up far deeper in the relationship than they ever intended. The end result being the Christian becomes Mormon. When you said, "I don't think I should get involved in activities from his church," you were right. Stay away. Everything seems so good from the outside. You also said, "If we like each other this much maybe it's kind of dangerous," again you're so right. I believe God is giving you a warning and you're allowing this relationship to become too close. Even though Conner is, I'm sure, a wonderful guy, he is in a false religion. That means you are playing with fire.

I think you would be wise to limit your conversations... You definitely should "avoid the temptation," as you have prayed to do.

Dear Judy,

Thanks so much for your reply. It's good to get advice from someone who understands! You told me I shouldn't allow this relationship to become too close. To be honest, I know

SIDE NOTE:

➔ In Numbers 25:1-5 we read that at the urging of Balaam, the Midianites deliberately and cunningly scheme to destroy Israel. The plan was to use the Midianite women to lure Israelite men first into bed and then into the obscene worship of a sensuous idol... It took little time for the men of Israel to be attracted by the Midianite women in Moab, and equally little time to be seduced into worshipping Baal-Peor... Israel's seduction serves as a good example of how personal relationships – particularly wrong ones – can easily influence religious preferences, and why the Israelites are so severely restricted from mixing with foreigners.

(Commentary by F. LaGard Smith in the NIV Daily Bible in Chronological Order)

What's in the News...

by Marsha Book / Volunteer Corner

The Concerned Christians office in Mesa has compiled a scrapbook of newspaper articles concerning Mormonism and its current events. Many articles are of national interest, such as Gordon Hinckley's recent death, with the successor appointment of the church's latest "prophet of the day." Some of the articles concern more local-interest topics, such as another new, smaller temple in south Gilbert. Some articles are quite serious, such as reports of attacks on missionaries, and similar tragedies.

There are a number of news articles, however, that are just plain "goo" in my opinion. You know the kind of goo that stirs up emotions needlessly and is printed possibly in order to enhance newspaper sales (or just to fill up space?). An example is a recent one on how Mormons are stocking up their food pantries with a two-year food supply. The reason the church in Salt Lake City has suggested all Mormons do this, especially now, is because they say U.S. truckers may go on strike due to high fuel prices, thereby prompting a disastrous food shortage. (This reminds me of the Y2K scare, which came to nothing.) The article is entitled "STOCKING UP, Food Shortage Fears Prompt LDS Members to Action" [May 24, 2008, edition of the East Valley/Scottsdale Tribune]. Note how the word "fear" appears in the main headline. Who wouldn't read that article and question for a moment, "Maybe that's something I should do too?"

Upon reading the article, I initially felt a feeling of inadequacy in this area. My family would starve in five days! Troubled, I asked the Executive Director of Concerned

Christians who has served since 1974, Jim Robertson for advice. "My response to that article" he said, "is where is your faith? If they don't believe and trust in the God of the Bible, maybe they need to hoard food to survive."

On a darker note (my mind still rambling in a troubled way), because it is now public knowledge that Mormons have lots of food in their pantries in case a disaster strikes, what will they do with this food? Share it only with their own? Hoard it for their own survival? "Save the world" because they are the only ones left alive who haven't starved to death? Even scarier, will they arm themselves to ward off certain pagans who 'come-a-knockin' so to speak, and try to force access to their supply?

Perhaps this article should end on a note more directed toward the title of "what's in the news?" and the possible motives behind the printing of some "gooey" topics. I know that it's all about being a diverse newspaper, attractive and appealing to a variety of audiences. So, if I don't like what's printed, I don't have to buy it.

Turning to news in The Cross newsletter publication you're now reading you'll notice a difference, however. How? The newsletter is free, and the editors of this newsletter aren't going to print only articles that are attractive and appealing. To the contrary, in fact, the opposite is true. The Cross is about exposing falsehood and promoting truth in historic Christianity. If you appreciate this kind of news, please remember to pray for Concerned Christians, and send a donation in the enclosed envelope if you feel so led by the LORD. It will be put to good use. †

AMAZING QUOTES

FROM LDS
CHURCH LEADERS

"Some gifts coming from the Atonement are universal, infinite, and unconditional. These include His ransom from Adam's original transgression ... Another universal gift is the Resurrection from the dead of every man, woman, and child who lives, has ever lived, or ever will live on earth. Other aspects of Christ's atoning gift are conditional. They depend on one's diligence in keeping God's commandments. For example, while all members of the human family are freely given a reprieve from Adam's sin through no effort of their own, they are not given a reprieve from their own sins unless they pledge faith in Christ, repent of those sins, are baptized in His name, receive the gift of the Holy Ghost and confirmation into Christ's Church [the LDS church], and press forward in faithful endurance the remainder of life's journey ... Having already offered the Atonement in our behalf, Christ has done His part to make that longing [to be with Him] a reality. The rest will depend entirely upon ourselves."

Elder Jeffrey R. Holland of the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles in his article "The Atonement of Jesus Christ" in the Ensign, March 2008, volume 38, number 3, pg 35, 38.

For it is by grace you have been saved, through faith—and this not from yourselves, it is the gift of God—not by works so that no one can boast.

The CROSS

Dear Concerned Christians,

Keep up with your wonderful ministry. I tell so many folks about you and your dedication and am currently sharing your newsletter with a friend who is accepting "help" from a scout-master and his wife (Mormons). She is so impressed with their friendliness and willingness to "help" with any and all situations. I remind her of their motivations and, hopefully, reading The CROSS will also keep her and her retarded son from being dragged into their "net." Thanks for listening and God Bless!

(Mesa, AZ)

Dear Jim,

I just want to tell you how incredibly helpful the Bible reference page [on Concerned Christians website] is!! I've been having discussions with my LDS friend and using NIV verses. When she told me that she didn't believe what I was telling her because my Bible was "corrupt", I didn't know what to do, until I found this page. It is EXTREMELY helpful in showing verses that are in their supposedly "flawless" KJV bible. It's great to know that I can still come up with verses that support what I believe from their Bible. Once again, thank you so much!!!

From the Concerned Christians discussion board:

I would call Concerned Christians the vehicle by which I found a new personal relationship with Christ. I was a questioning Mormon when I arrived, however I didn't only question LDS ideas/doctrine. When I got here I believed in NOTHING... When Mormonism's base came out from under me, I lost faith in everything.

I only intended to post here a week or two. I got the strongest impression to come post here, after I witnessed yet another brutal bashing of this site at MADB [an LDS discussion board]. I intended to simply come here, gather data, and go back to MADB to show that the two places were similar and the only difference was bias.

I found something else here. I found "L" and "S" (I knew her from MADB) and then people like you, Bob, "D," and "OH." I had never seen people defend "Christianity" as efficiently, and as black and white. At first I was slightly put off, but what was being said was true, and I couldn't deny it. So I decided to stay a little longer (like a month or so ... so I thought).

Long story short, of all the forums I have been a part of, I found the most respect and most accurate discussion here. So here is where I stay. I believe that God is directing people here, and I for one feel I should stay to help when I can. I may not agree a lot of the time with how things are said or when, but I usually agree with what is being said, and that's what is important.

Thank you to all here who have handled themselves in a respectful and courteous manner, while having the Spirit of Christ in your heart. And thanks again to those who started and funded Concerned Christians. It didn't make me question Mormonism, but this place was definitely used to help this once LDS person to see the Biblical Jesus.

(Note on Concerned Christians discussion board)

Friends,

We met Jim and Judy on the road in Idaho [in 2007] and they gave us her book [Out of Mormonism], a DVD [Jesus Christ/Joseph Smith], and some other information. It was such a blessing. God bless you all for all that you do to help those in such darkness to come to Jesus.

(Sioux Falls, SD)

Dear Concerned Christians,

Thank You! I've learned a lot and enjoy reading your newsletter! I'm not so "techy" so I like snail mail. Thank you. Bless your Ministry!

(Show Low, AZ)

Dear Friends in Christ,

I thank the Lord for every remembrance of you and your ministry. My friend of 50 years is still blinded by the lying and deceiving spirits of Mormonism. Please continue to lift her up along with all the deceived Mormons you pray for. Thank you. I have appreciated your newsletter ... you will all continue to be in my prayers.

(Pittsburg, PA)

Dear Concerned Christians,

I enjoy receiving The CROSS. Thanks for the groundwork you are doing in educating more people about the deceptions of Mormonism. I had spent 32 years as a loyal, tithing Temple going Mormon. Then my eyes were opened. In 2001 I was baptized by Jim Robertson in Mesa. Now I'm involved in a wonderful church in Connecticut. Please accept this contribution and may God continue to bless your ministry.

(Unionville, CT)

Dear Concerned Christians,

Your ministry had helped me and my family immensely. The truth has set me free. I truly love and appreciate all that your ministry has done for me. By the way, we used your letter from the website and everything went smoothly. Our records have been removed from the LDS church.

(Mesa, AZ)

Dear Mrs. Robertson,

I know you are probably extremely busy, but I needed to take a few minutes and send you a quick note. I am a 23 year old college student who has been on a "spiritual" quest for about two years. I was raised Methodist and ended up leaving the church two years ago because my pastor was promoting political teachings I did not agree with. So armed with my limited knowledge of the Bible, I set out to find answers. About a year ago I met some wonderful people in some of my classes, yes they were Mormon. After finding every excuse not to attend church with them, I finally relented and met with some missionaries. After meeting with the missionaries I attended some of their social functions, thinking all along "Wow, Mormons sure do have a lot of misconceptions about them; they are wonderful." Then, I finally went to church with them. As I have heard all missionaries say, they tell you to pray about if the Book of Mormon is true and I will see the answer. Instead of that prayer, I asked God to point me in a direction in which I could get to know Him and His Son more closely. The very next day I was flipping through a newspaper and it contained a book review of your book Out of Mormonism. I thought "that's odd, usually only books are reviewed when they first come out and this book first came out in 1997." The book came with an "A" rating and later that day I went out and bought it. I have since read it twice, found your organization on the internet and I just wanted to say thank you. Thank you for saving me from making the biggest mistake of my life. I love the Lord and believe I've already been handed salvation and for that I am thankful. Thank you for the work that you do.

(Received via e-mail)

that's what's happening right now. Last night, I worked at the mission. Conner came to pick me up because we were going out for supper with a few of his friends. I really liked it and we had some good conversations. After that, they wanted to go to the church dance and because I had told Conner I didn't want to go there, the two of us went for ice cream. When I told my mom about this, she was really upset. "You're leading this guy on," she said, "and you shouldn't become so close with people from the world, or from cults." "But mom" I said, "they're so nice. They've got good morals and they accept me the way I am!" She didn't agree. But I can't suddenly tell them I'm not hanging out with them anymore, right? How can I remain their friend if I shouldn't become too close?

Conner asked me if I wanted to come to his baseball league on Tuesday and I said I wouldn't. Also, he got me a Book of Mormon. It shocked me because on the front it said something about that it was from Jesus Christ, while it's not! That's why I said I didn't want it. He said "I thought we were trying to understand each other's religion, Casey." I would say yes, only because I like him so much, but I felt I couldn't. I don't even dare to read it because I know Satan is very powerful and I'm scared of it. Conner was hurt, and that was hard for me too because I don't want my friend to be hurting. But it hurts so much because I can't just say goodbye to one of my best friends. I can't even imagine!

I hope so much that Conner one day will see that his religion is false, but it seems like he's now trying to convince me to come to his church. I would never admit this to anyone because they would be so worried, but it hurts Judy. I want him to be happy, which can only be if he knows our Lord Jesus. Psalm 25 comes to my mind. "Show me Your ways, O Lord, teach me Your paths..." That's what's in my heart all the time... I need God to show me what to do because then I'd know I'm doing the right thing. But how do I know?

~~~ Three Years Later ~~~

Dear Judy,

I hope you are well and that this is still your email address! It is more than two years ago that I e-mailed you. I am not sure if you recall but around that time I was getting to know a young man named Conner. I read your book, e-mailed with you, talked for hours with Conner, my parents, friends, etc. but all to no avail. I started to care for Conner much more than I should have and slowly but surely found myself caring more about him than his soul and my desire to tell him about the truth. Despite much resistance from both parents, we agreed to respect each other's beliefs by attending both churches and hopefully find out which religion was true. It happened just like you said it might, Judy. I got much too involved and didn't see (perhaps didn't want to see) the big train of emotions coming that would drive over all my good intentions and desires. Many difficult months followed. My parents were devastated. Arguments, discussions, fights, tears, and many prayers took place in that time, but I have to say I did not want to give up. I hoped God would lead Conner to the light, but most of all, I loved him so incredibly much.

We were considering getting engaged and hoping we could reconcile with our families in that way. However, Conner's beliefs in the LDS church grew stronger and, more and more, he and his family tried to get me into the church. Once, his dad (a bishop) phoned me and said I could never marry his son if I didn't join the church. He asked me to come talk to him though, and I did. In his office, he was all of a sudden very nice, welcoming, warm... All I had to do was read the Book of Mormon and ask God whether it was the truth or not, and He would tell me. Well, I read the book but found it so different from what I was brought up with and once adamantly professed. You could say it opened my eyes to the fact that this was not God's precious Word and that I was denying the Lord. I talked about this with Conner but of course he didn't understand.

Around that time, my parents asked me to make a choice; they wanted me to decide whether I was going to be a Christian or become Mormon, whether I wanted to trust in God or choose my own ways and go with Conner. This time was very difficult but the end result was that I broke up with Conner because I could not honestly say that I believed that the LDS church was God's church, and my relationship was only drawing me into it.

Twice after that, Conner and I got back together in secret and even fell into sin. I felt farther away from the Lord than I ever had, and it was only His mercy and love that pulled me back again and compelled me to really make the right choice.

In a miraculous way the Lord provided a way for me, as I was suddenly asked to volunteer in disaster-affected area of the world. Two weeks later, I was on my way to volunteer among people who lost everything. One pastor saw his wife and little baby being swept away by the waves and he could do nothing to help them... yet, he glorified God! Unbelievable! Personally, I felt as if my heart was ripped apart because I lost the man whom I loved more than I could have ever imagined, and because I knew I disobeyed the Lord. My original one-month stay turned into more than six. Despite the hurt, challenges, and difficulties, I can truly say these were the most wonderful and beneficial months in my life so far!

When I came back, Conner tried to get into contact with me several times and it was very difficult to resist, even just going for coffee. My heart still longed for him, but thankfully the Lord helped me through this. Unbelievable isn't it, how disobedience (even though seemingly so innocent) can have so many consequences?

Bait and Switch

By Judy Robertson

As my friend and I waited on the temple grounds in Mesa for the “The Largest Annual Easter pageant in the world” to begin, we were greeted by members of the cast who strolled through the audience. Arrayed in skillfully-sewn costumes for their part in the drama, they looked elegant. Two female actors stopped to speak with my friend and me. Cordial and lovely, they asked if we’d ever seen the pageant before and invited us to go inside the visitor’s center after the drama to receive more information about the LDS church.

The drama began with much fanfare and music to fit the setting. The biblical story of Jesus was reenacted, but not totally accurately. There were a few portions of the story that emphasized the Mormon viewpoint rather than the biblical version. The scene in the Garden of Gethsemane was staged with dramatic lights and lasted several minutes, clearly portraying the LDS view of atonement occurring there. In contrast, the brief crucifixion scene mentioned nothing about forgiveness. The LDS teaching about Jesus laying his hands on the apostles, “passing on His priesthood power,” was also among the few distinctly Mormon teachings. But most wouldn’t catch these subtle differences.

More important than the drama itself, which was beautifully done complete with a cave, sheep and lambs, angelic choir singing on the top of the setting with golden trumpets blaring, is what was left out of the drama.

The story inside the visitor’s center quickly changes from an emphasis on Christ and adds the Mormon story as told by Joseph Smith. But how many suspect anything false? Astonishingly few.

Not many of the thousands watching the drama ever suspected that the temple, only a few yards to the South, contained secrets and rituals that are abominable to God.

Why are the differences between the biblical account and the very different Mormon account not made known to the public? I believe this question addresses the root of the conflict between biblical Christians and Latter-day Saints.

“...But you are my witnesses, O Israel!” says the LORD. “And you are my servant. You have been chosen to know me, believe in me, and understand that I alone am God. There is no other God; there never has been, and there never will be...” Isaiah 43:10

I call it bait and switch. An unethical sales person shows an appealing object for sale and the customer buys it, only to find out later that another object, far inferior, has been substituted for the real thing. So Mormon missionaries praise the wholesome, family- oriented, hard-working aspects of the Mormon people. No one can argue this appealing lifestyle. But once a person becomes LDS, a far different lifestyle and teaching becomes apparent.

Most Mormons know that even nominal Christians would not be interested in this religion if they knew all the facts. So Mormons have collectively become proficient at baiting with what appeals to most, but don’t tell the facts about many doctrines that contradict the bible.

And what facts are we speaking of here?

Joseph Smith is revered on the same level as Jesus Christ. (See History of the Church, vol. 6, pp.# 408-09)

Jesus is only the spirit brother of everyone on earth, He is not God incarnate. (See Gospel Principles, pp.# 17-18, 1997 edition)

God or “Heavenly Father” is not a spirit as the Bible teaches but has a body of flesh and bones as we have. (See Teachings of the Prophet Joseph Smith by Joseph Fielding Smith, pp. # 345-46)

The fall of Adam was “an essential part of ‘Heavenly Father’s divine plan” for our good and not the pivotal place in history that brought about our fallen nature. (See Gospel Principles, pp. 31-34, 1997 edition)

(See other facts in Witness to Mormons by Concerned Christians.)

Unfortunately, beneath the beautiful façade of Mormonism exists a heretical way of life, and teaching.

If you’ve ever been duped by a slick salesperson, then you know how important it is to check the facts. Let’s encourage one another to look behind the scenes when it comes to religion as well, and not rely on what we see as a drama beautifully portrayed. †

Well, at the moment I am preparing to teach the youth of my church as I was asked to do on, guess what... Mormonism! Many memories come back as I am reading through your book and other resources again, but I am glad I can use my knowledge and experiences to educate our young people on this. It is sometimes discouraging when I see LDS missionaries walking through our town, but we have a great God. Even I, rebellious I, and my situation was not too little or too much for Him to be concerned about.

And one more thing, to make us all marvel even more at God's goodness. This coming May I will be getting married to a very godly and even more special man! We have had much to work through, but it is so amazing to seek and serve the Lord together. Amazing grace Judy, how sweet the sound! I just had to tell you.

Casey

Do not be yoked together with unbelievers. For what do righteousness and wickedness have in common? Or what fellowship can light have with darkness?

~ 2 Corinthians 6:14
